Valentin

When you are looking for a top clairvoyant, 118 Piccadilly is the place to go: the office address of Celebrity Psychic Consultant Valentin Borissov. Born with an exceptional gift of clairvoyance, he developed his psychic abilities since early childhood, when he was able to amaze people with his accurate predictions about the future, including foreseeing some important events in the world of politics & the Arts.

Valentin inherited his glamour from his grandparents: Countess Vera & General Ivanoff, pictured here on their wedding day in 1936 in Sofia

Good-looking, mysterious and descended from an East European aristocratic background, Valentin displays a wide range of interests and skills. Growing up in Sofia, he studied during his teens to become a concert pianist before going to Vienna University, where he studied literature. An accomplished linguist, he speaks several European languages, including perfect English, which helps him in his work with some of his high-level international clients. Valentin has won great acclaim, giving confidential advice to business leaders and prominent figures from the world of politics, the Arts and some foreign Embassies. His approach is inspired and mystical and at the same time humane and understanding. Valentin combines a variety of methods to make his predictions, including the Tarot cards, but also numerology, astrology, Rune stones and crystals to reveal the past, present and future circumstances and events in the client's life and, in his own words: 'to heal and empower your being'.

Valentin

As a sign of recognition of his cult status amongst his many celebrity clients, Valentin was invited on several occasions last year to take part in live phone-in programmes on BBC London Radio and hopefully, if he overcomes his natural shyness and strong desire for privacy, the British public might be able to see him also on one of the major TV channels – to the delight of his many fans & admirers.
